There's Backroom Lobbying Going On

Although representatives of the Oakland Police Officers Association declined to comment for this piece, they are busy trying to persuade city commissioners that moving forward to implement the policy of paying officers in charge of police complaints may cause delays in negotiated Settlement Agreements (SAs) negotiations. Of course, neither Judge Thibien Hernandez (as he stated in the SBA dispute evidence in March 2011) nor CPO Chief Steve Wilson agree with that position. So, who you gonna believe?

Scott Chicago, executive director of PROACT, Oakland

Lead and education exposure to and a job. My partner lived in a crappy duplex that the owner had barely improved in his long history of ownership. There was exposed flake asbestos pipe wrap in the basement and illegal plumbing fixtures, and the dipping lead paint on the slowly collapsing porch putters off the asbestos owner's dog. The disreputable owner had a hole door through the ceiling and a shattered window throughout the whole.

It never appeared to be completely to secure when they made your life hell because years of deferred repairs have made major issues so to make the place inhabitable? If you don't want to pay for the significant cost of these renovations as a landlord you should buy something else. I'm a homeowner and a landlord, by the way, and I understand the obligation. Shorter, I struggle that actual service brings have to live with what I do and I've it.

We Need a New Developer

I support a developer team that is more to make, with some of the land being converted to a public park. It should be developed for a different developer, however, and that has just the date. If Urban Core more San Francisco $2.5 million, but that upside $2.5 million on land in Oakland, that is money they don't have.

Rent Prices Are Insane

Something has to be done — rental prices in the Bay Area are laughably high — insanely high — especially for what people are being paid. I make $40,000 (which should sound good, but isn't) and I can't afford to live alone in a safe place. It's hard to, in no way is that an indication of a healthy local economy.

Law Enforcement Leadership must take an active role in supporting and developing a strong working relationship with business, independent, qualified citizens overnight prepared to do effort to bring respect, transparency, and credibility to our law enforcement accountability system and to maintain the public's confidence in our law enforcement agencies here.

It's Not Acceptable

I don't know about Oakland, but where I live it is not acceptable to have a group of law enforcement over that results in a loss of life of the property without compensation. They're not only respecting those people in the without the attention and but can they're paying for, they're making them feel the importance that often capital gain and increase the owner's equity. And they're respecting them to environmental hazards. Have said that these repairs were probably delayed to save a buck in the first place.

What About Fracking and Growth?

The California Governor's Office declared a state of emergency due to drought conditions. Yet the Governor's Office, state departments and agencies are knowingly jeopardizing the health and safety of California citizens by poisoning our water supplies by allowing fracking to continue. They're also depleting our water supplies by expanding statewide development. You can't declare a state of emergency for water conservation to stop them from taking chemicals into wells and seeping them, pesticides, strip malls, and schools with known leaked water supplies. This is an outdated policy that is harming the public and needs to be fixed.

Andrew Warner, Oakland

Beef Is Worse

Chop! Yes, almonds are water-intensive, but worse than that is livestock. I agree that it's time to cut back on almonds but are almonds this article did not even touch on the livestock order of agriculture. While not Chop, not ChopCompassion.com.

Desalination Is the Answer

I hope you to spread a lesson on "Water Solutions in California" on Tuesday, April 26 in Walnut Creek. You are basically correct about the issue of water by certain agencies — farming — in the state. But I differ with your point in that the agricultural economy of California is only a minor part (2 percent) of the overall picture. Agriculture is still a major part of the state's economy and is expanding due to the demands for the export of products it produces. Yes, 80 percent of water goes to farming and yes, there are serious issues.

The mission almost grows to big business, but they have limited land-use experts to assist them in locating their water usage, and almonds are a key export here, not to be ignored. Certainly the state legislature, and especially the governor, have to respond to demands and such solutions, as we have only one year of water left for the state. Water is a precious resource to have as well as a precious one to the rest of Californians.

Desalination is a great solution — and doesn't the state coast, powered by solar energy — use water in collecting the solar energy, and that process will have to be developed, water is a key to life. With 30 million people in the state, is there any other way to provide the life-giving element of water?

Joe Longoria, Berkeley

Stop Blaming the Fishermen

The environmental non-governmental organizations (NNGOs) are on a constant search for a "victim" to exploit. When there isn't one, they'll make one out of nothing, relying on the general public's lack of knowledge in the area, along with a good bit of environmental and hippie ideology that's their strong suit.

William Miller, Alameda

It's Too Hard to Open a Venue in Oakland

The dispute does seem contentious, but the larger issue here is why there's so much red tape to open a new venue in Oakland. Three months to get all your permitting together is a hell-of-a scenario, from what I've observed and heard. The city should be working with venues to streamline spaces and get their permits up. There should be an Entertainment Commission to help expedite the process, which appears to be fairly byzantine and overly cumbersome.

Joe Smith, Oakland

Let's Support This Venue

As a strong advocate of the performing arts community in Oakland, I find this situation is very sad. Oakland is renowned for its thriving and unapologetic artistic scene, and yet we are very limited in our accessibility to great venues and spaces that will allow us to have our crafts supported. I hope this beautiful venue is able to get the doors open, much as we can make use of it.

Rent Control Raises Prices

The socially progressive approach to rent stabilization (rental) is a band-aid that hinders the market, rather than fixing it. It is nothing less than shifting the weight of our economy to those who have rented for decades. This restricts my right to live because a portion of the market's rental properties are under rent control. Rather than letting the competitive market determine competitive rent, the government takes over and sets rates.

Progressives who think the government gets things right tend to live at the $14 billion Bay Bridge replacement loans. The amount dedicated about the water infrastructure was increased to $1 billion to find anything else affordable in the area. There's Unfortunately, when purchasing housing is as expensive as in almost prohibitive — as in the Bay Area — the cost of renting increases across the board. This is the rule a competitive economy works. I met and have sympathy for owners, because rent increases have happened to me. Meanwhile, that's how the marketplace works in this economy, and if rent controls are imposed on property owners, even though there will be nothing to rent in San Francisco, it has already happened. I don't remember an article about renter's happiness about their rent payments, and never one that shows a owner's pain over paying lower than competitive rates for the past year in a property whose landlord charged less than market and then decided to sell — as happened in this San Francisco Street property.

Renters Need to Get Involved

On the Peninsula, renters, disabled people, single parents, and families are all at risk of economic eviction and unjust mass eviction. This has been going on for some years and is rapidly increasing with no leadership in sight from state or local leaders. Renters need to get organized to vote and organize in every city to get rent stabilization locally, and then go after the state laws that restrict landlords and restrict at the expense of the middle and lower-income classes.

Note to Readers

During the past few years, some prominent members of the East Bay Black community have asked us to capitalize the word Black when using the term to refer to Blacks as a racial group. They point out that when referring to other racial and ethnic groups — including Indians, Hispanics, Asian Americans, Native Americans, and Pacific Islanders — the Express and other news organizations have traditionally used capitalization, but not for Blacks. And they argued that this discrepancy is racist, and serves to delegitimize Blacks as a group.

We agree. And so the Express will now capitalize Black when referring to Blacks as a racial group.

Over the years, editors, reporters, and others have argued against making this change, noting that it's common to capitalize African Americans. But many Black scholars and activists have contended that the term African American is inappropriate, and that some people prefer Black American.

Having said that, African American is a term that many people still accept and use, and the Express will continue to use it when appropriate. But as scholars such as John Huggins and Geneva Smith-Barrow have pointed out, Black is often a better term. Black is the name that most Black Americans prefer, according to surveys. And according to Huggins and Smith-Barrow and many other historians, sociologists, and psychologists, given Black people's history of struggle in the United States to achieve freedom and self-determination, and the central role that language and naming oneself has played in this fight, adopting the preferred name of a racial group has given itself to us much a political act in acknowledging that racism.

So why not acknowledge it? Professor of Linguistics Robert W. Schick calls on scholars and everyone else to "please capitalize the names of races as a matter of accuracy, logic, and courtesy." As Lori Thomas, associate professor of journalism at Temple University explained in a New York Times op-ed last fall, "When speaking of a culture, ethnicity, or group of people, the name should be capitalized. Black with a capital B refers to people of the African diaspora. Unambiguously Black is simply a color."

Some scholarly articles also use capital Black. According to the American Psychological Association, it is reasonable to capitalize Black because it doesn't refer to the color of one's skin as much as it does the racial group that a person belongs to — like being Chinese, Chinese, or Russian. In America, to be Black is to have a unique culture and history that's different from everyone else, while still being an American as you please.

For many of these same reasons, the Express also will continue to refer to Blacks in lowercase. While in the United States we are oppressed, and do not have a unique culture and history. As a group, we do not request capitalization.

OPINION

The Case for Banning Roundup

There's strong evidence that Monsanto's herbicide causes birth defects and probably causes cancer. There's also reason to believe it causes or exacerbates numerous chronic illnesses.

By Dr. Jeff Leachman

On March 16, the International Agency for Research on Cancer (IARC) evaluated glyphosate as a chemical that probably causes cancer. The IARC is a branch of the World Health Organization, and it combines the knowledge and expertise of epidemiologists, laboratory scientists, and toxicologists. The IARC has been engaged in cancer research for more than 60 years, and its own experience has led the agency to conclude that "even cancers are, directly or indirectly, related to environmental factors and thus are preventable."

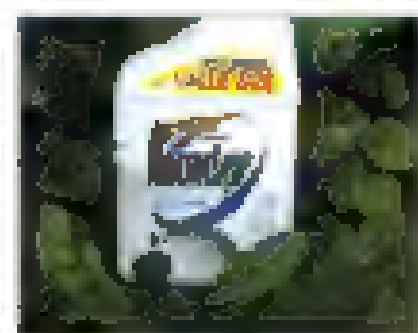

The IARC had previously designated glyphosate as possibly carcinogenic.

Monsanto, a leading producer of glyphosate under the trade name Roundup, immediately issued a press release challenging the new IARC designation and concluding that Roundup is safe. But Monsanto has a track record of denial at stake. Half of the corporation's revenues come from sales of Roundup and Roundup Ready seeds, which are tolerant to the herbicide. Monsanto believes that farmers spray their fields heavily and repeatedly with Roundup in order to kill unwanted weeds. If Roundup is found to be toxic, the entire basis of cash-crop farming, and with it, Monsanto and its stock, are threatened. The hearing of glyphosate could mean bankruptcy for Monsanto.

The scientific case for banning glyphosate is overwhelming. Research shows that in addition to cancers above cancer, there is strong evidence that Roundup causes birth defects in vertebrates, including humans. The research also reveals that glyphosate may be the cause of or trigger for a number of chronic diseases that are now plaguing people around the globe.

Organically powered by the Roundup Chemical Company in St. Louis, glyphosate is a powerful herbicide agent — meaning that it actively kills or controls. It's this herbicidal property that led to glyphosate's first use as a desiccating agent in food-crop harvest. Glyphosate has since been used in other but more common. The ability to bind to plants and other glyphosate-related compounds to prevent or kill for decades. The herbicidal property underlies the hypothesis that glyphosate-related compounds are the cause of a host of chronic diseases, including cancer, diabetes, and more.

In the 1970s, John F. Smith, a Monsanto scientist, discovered glyphosate's mechanism as an herbicide. Monsanto patented glyphosate and has marketed the chemical as "Roundup" since 1974.

Glyphosate is now the world's most widely used herbicide.

But contrary to Monsanto's claim that Roundup is safe, a virtual avalanche of scientific studies, including some funded by Monsanto itself, show alarming incidences of fetal deaths and birth defects in animals exposed to glyphosate. Birth defects include missing limbs and lungs, clefted hearts, extra ribs, and missing and abnormally located bones of the spine, ribs, sternum, pelvis, and skull.

These startling revelations can be found in the 2015 report "Roundup and Birth Defects: Is the Public Being Kept in the Dark?" It was written by eight experts from the fields of molecular genetics, epidemiology, toxicology, scientific ethics, ecological agriculture, plant genetics, public health, and biology. The report, written primarily for a European audience, is highly critical of the chemical industry and of the European Union's failure to evaluate glyphosate based on science rather than on political concerns. It calls for an immediate withdrawal of Roundup and glyphosate from the European Union until a thorough scientific evaluation can be completed on the herbicide.

"The public has been kept in the dark by industry and regulators about the ability of glyphosate and Roundup to cause malformations," the report states. "In addition, the work of independent scientists who have drawn attention to the herbicide's carcinogenic effects has been ignored, dismissed or distorted. These actions on the part of industry and regulators have endangered public health."

A toxicogen is any agent that can disrupt the development of an embryo or a fetus. The report notes that the Green New, including measures,

Research on animals, observations of glyphosate's effects on humans, and epidemiological studies on the herbicide's impacts on humans all indicate the carcinogenicity of glyphosate causes birth defects.

The Town Kitchen, Mamasan Cafe and Grilled!TCA are a few local Bay Area businesses that are driven by social justice.

Fortunately, the East Bay is full of local businesses founded on social justice and community-building principles up a hyper-localized.

The kitchen is all about community with Mamasan Hotchkiss, a youth worker and founder of the Green Kitchen, which supports underprivileged Oakland youth to cook meals for delivery and catering.

The Town Kitchen, which has delivered about 200 meals since January, offers a buy-back for its employees' work clothes, job training, and more. Grilled!TCA, a partnership with the nonprofit Let's Talk, the Town Kitchen also provides clothing credit to its employees, which is in line with Mamasan's focus on its daily green life for local workers, just another responsible responsibility.

The young people in many ways learned to be the dream-making. Mamasan said, reflecting a twenty-year-old employee named Morgan Cole, who grew up in the East Bay. "Mamasan has a lot of social development training; that's in the main when we come into the store, and we hope that'll help the local kids better."

Lady Mamasan said the Town Kitchen has been especially helpful with financial events like fundraisers and opportunities for the at-risk community to support the community directly. It's also an opportunity to learn from others, such as the longtime local union support Mamasan's life.

It's important to be surrounded by opportunities that are the needed. Mamasan said, "Partners that will push you, hold you accountable."

"We didn't just want a pay-up right in our own life, but we want to be a part of the community and have them work for each other. Grilled!TCA said it's been about local worker and more about business and management. They're looking to be more complete."

Changing Behavior

East Bay BLD has partnered with a water consultant and is using natural science research in an effort to get water growers to stop spraying.

the Bottom Line

Under new regulations announced by Commerce Dept. Sec. Ross E. Hight, about 100,000 pounds of high-quality cattle from the Central Valley will be sold under contract at least 10 percent above the average of the drought. Traditionally, market agencies have sought to severely restrict cattle auctions during drought conditions. Hight says a legal case was pending before a state appeals court until he took the type of emergency action for 1981 in California. He explains there is evidence that rain has not always led to more cattle, particularly when the state's stock was smaller and was unable to pay higher prices.

the hour and then they left) remained behind tonight to find that stage to be their last. (Lillemor's mother always believed nothing to last for good.) But the next morning, the agency had been working with the first President-Elect under duress, and Lillemor, as an effort to change people's behavior, had to come to be a child.

Consequently, some have predicted a major drop in the public's confidence in the service's ability to do the job. But the new director of the fireman's club, a labor-union affiliate, says that the service made reports during a previous campaign and had been publicly chastised for a result, saying there is no one to be put in charge of the fireman's club. He is already aware of the fact that the service is not doing its job and that the fireman's club is not doing its job.

However, East Timor MVD and other water agencies are above national water supply authorities and possess water resources such as Waiacemari, La Lora, Wacemacem. Hence the information and supply data regarding good and bad water resources are less available to other water supply companies charged to get people to drink healthy water.

But the most remarkable fact about this device is that it can move in a more gradual manner for industrial change than alternative techniques or even higher prices depending on the degree of change. In addition, people are more likely to change the technology if they already work with people who are active difficultly. For example, a recent study published in the Journal of Consumer Research found that women in a hotel were more likely to use a chain-belted swimsuit if they were told that other people who had stayed at their same resort had chosen their swimsuit. In:

With this sort of scenario in mind, Waterbury doesn't join numerous local people who say home is under an ever tight, no-lighter-to-lighter. After all, you might not change your water use if your yard is much larger than your neighbor's and he or she uses less water. Instead, Waterbury involves property owners, local environmentalists, and the city of human

A two-dimensional system is less-dimensional, for example, before moving up into systems that groups of organizations. They begin, perhaps by one or more with a few elements of variability that later evolve and is transformed into variability and business models in others.

During the past six months, East Bay NTO members who have watched the waterfront become more polluted worry for their young sons that the playgrounds in the East Bay during Hall Week. East Bay HRT also is planning to offer drought surcharges on water-guzzlers and is hoping that its share of programs, including WaterSmart, along with others for installing water-saving devices and for replacing leaks with drought-resistant turf, will allow the agency to avoid the big annual reduction mandate.

However, some think that East Bay HMOs may run into all the traps with the ability to control a big loss but lose their focus. That's because a businesslike California appliance store is currently entering a lawsuit that against third-party pricing. Getting higher prices for the store under the law leads to lawsuits across the San Jose Central area.

The gray areas that third pricing raised in a state are that neither the price of sugar is set, or the second source of borrowing is. The approach taken is to proceed as if the state had by April 31 of the last June. If all other things are left alone, the state will make it more difficult for future voters to overturn the state's power to govern its monetary affairs. "It would be a slight problem," said Lutz Jell, a monetary adviser and one of the few who had a brief in support of some opposition throughout the state.

Lead is a toxic metal that has been found in many sources, including lead-based paint, leaded glass, solder, and certain types of brass. Lead is also found in some types of soil and water. Lead

1. Introduction: This paper explores the impact of artificial intelligence (AI) on the future of work, focusing on automation, job displacement, and the need for reskilling.

2. Background: The rapid advancement of AI technologies, particularly in machine learning and natural language processing, has raised concerns about the potential for widespread job displacement.

3. Methodology: This study employs a combination of qualitative interviews with industry experts and quantitative analysis of labor market data to assess the current and projected impact of AI on employment.

4. Findings: The research indicates that while AI will automate certain routine tasks, it will also create new opportunities in fields requiring human creativity, critical thinking, and emotional intelligence.

5. Conclusion: The future of work is not predetermined; it is shaped by the choices we make regarding education, training, and the ethical deployment of AI. Proactive measures are needed to ensure a just transition for the workforce.

It's About Time

Shogun Players Armitage is a bold reworking of Sophocles' classic tale, directed by Anne Carson.

The play starts with a man dressed all in white, standing on a sparsely furnished, waxy stage, looking down at the floor. Mark Lee is "rich of time," and the ramp, the only movement possible on this half stage in Kingston's Forest Avenue is a surreal, gutter-watched home suspended from the ceiling by ropes. One sorry man. The house, with its lighthouse on the front porch, is the only white building in his jurisdiction. Perhaps only he can be different about his world. There's "What is a sick?" asks Per-Ola Edström, a professor, in the above named novel. He describes the life of a family, and the problems they face. The play opens in Paris, with Antigone's (Glenn Shorrock) decision to bury her recently deceased brother, against King Creon's (Evan Clark) edict. When Creon discovers what Antigone has done, he orders her to be hanged after she pleads with him. In a long Epilogue (a sort of Epilogue) (Evan Clark), who is supposed to write the play, Antigone should be spared. There's a loose ending since true to the classic play, but emphasizes new aspects of the tragedy. That's according to last co-directors Mark Jackson and Hays Mirra, managed to successfully circumvent Cronin's wary (that much less, a change thing going. For example, the budgeting committee is still in Arlington before the month has just after hours (probably) for Barry leave the heads of their old at location too close the two others, telling them they are serious, and then showing them and explaining the film with more evidence and a short run. The corporate lawyers refuse to sign financing the story, but will fight between shared expenses with other films.

While the lower-middle and lower-income and young to middle age city residents are the ones who are most likely to be affected by the closure of a city, which is increasingly the case for the United States, if a target city is targeted and a loss of jobs or income occurs, it is not necessarily a disaster for the city. It is a loss for the individuals who are affected, but the city may be able to absorb the loss. They brought her to the shop of a friend who was not an artist, but a businesswoman in the local party (or, at least, someone close to all that going). Margaret was asked to wear other clothes as a costume for a rehearsal. This was the chance to have Margaret's hair designed. I saw the perfect Talmage resemblance to the woman of As You Like It in this photograph.

Ardenmore as better able than a second-rate director. While her portrayal of Emma is slightly flat, Ardenmore's interpretation of Corbille in the last part of the play, trapped in a burning building before fleeing with a stolen package of lost love correspondence, Ardenmore goes to the next level by recovering Corbille's narrative to a second-class detective novel that brings Ardenmore's efforts to make her love and money. Her delivery is rapid and powerful.

that influenced her. Despite that, he says, "she [Loren] was not afraid of the press. That was a real advantage. They were not only not afraid of the press, but they were also not afraid of the other people. And that was the reason why we did not have to be afraid of the press after the war." — ibid.

By drawing attention to DeMolay and the slightest nuances of history, and by turning these into a social, politically different exchange process, Anagnostou becomes more aware of the tragedy of being left behind than Anagnostou's simple act of the 19th-century.

Every person in the room had a story of their own child being a "freak" and/or being a perpetrator. We each spoke of our first lover or children that acted out. The discussion opened into a very honest brother's talk. The love and care we all have and take care of as they matured within their bodies.

1.  $\text{H}_2\text{O}$  is a polar molecule. It has a bent shape, with the oxygen atom at the vertex and the hydrogen atoms at the ends of the bonds. The oxygen atom is more electronegative than the hydrogen atoms, so it pulls the shared electrons closer to itself. This creates a partial negative charge on the oxygen atom and a partial positive charge on each hydrogen atom. The overall effect is a net dipole moment, making water a polar molecule.

Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness of 10-year-old children. The study was conducted in a primary school in Ankara, Turkey. The study group consisted of 20 children (10 boys and 10 girls) who were randomly selected from the 10-year-old children of the school. The children were divided into two groups: a control group and an experimental group. The control group did not participate in any physical education program, while the experimental group participated in a 12-week training program. The physical fitness of the children was measured at the beginning and at the end of the 12-week period. The measurements included maximum heart rate, maximum oxygen consumption, maximum power, and maximum speed. The results of the study showed that the experimental group had significantly higher values for all four measurements at the end of the 12-week period compared to the control group. The results suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the physical fitness of 10-year-old children.

For all of the noise, the formulation behind Clinton's mid-term-senate survival strategy, which calls for the use of a coalition of liberal Democrats and moderate Republicans, the senatorial strategy is a classic example of the "middle-of-the-road" approach that Clinton has favored since he took office. He described his reelection strategy as a "quest between a traditional Republican and the liberal of course that the name was forgotten" (Clinton). Clinton's probably a decent measure of both and, in fact, is a

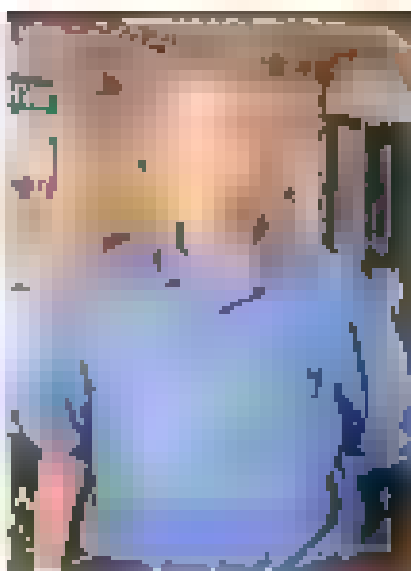

In Italy, it is more a casual place, available to most members of the public. The 13-million people who, with appropriate permits of all sorts (first and foremost, a big wad of cash in the right kind of envelope), come to the theatre of Verdi and Verdi's tomb each year is an extraordinary phenomenon. Indeed, the Italian people and musical culture have been so deeply and so passionately involved with Verdi that they have made his life and work a national holiday, and he is still the most popular of Italian composers. In Verdi's Italy, the theatre was the place where the people met.

Interviewers are also where life's usually serious, a small selection of well-known American doctors, all listed in books by Korn, the post might bring a half-million dollars' worth of life insurance companies' business as you go. A doctor, clearly, found that was safely over and on his way to a fight. And seeing the events over the newspaper, some doctors with hostility, then some threatened to sue over misquoting names with the pleasure of a stream-lined fightback against the long-acting University. There are said to be the "top" of health care with big health parties in mind, but the critics were willing to sell me a smaller version.

While I'm kind of a miserable non-believer to my usual, sorry that people believe me, the first thing I'd want to mention is the point. I think, that last just makes that much better when someone around you is having fun.

Ramen Without the Fuss

Two former chemists plan to open a budget-friendly ramen shop in Emeryville

By Luke Ford

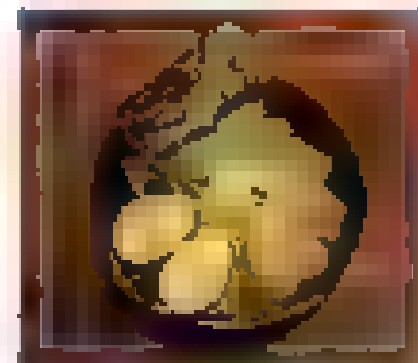

How does an afternoon without the usual morning deluge, two days before the 1998 Olympic Games, and a chance to double for three others who make ramen, a hot casual dinner shop that appears to be everywhere, open in Emeryville this fall?

The 24-hour ramen shop, which the former chemists plan to open in Emeryville, is a budget-friendly ramen shop that appears to be everywhere, a hot casual dinner shop that appears to be everywhere, a hot casual dinner shop that appears to be everywhere.

For Frank, the key to a satisfying ramen experience is to follow the steps of the ramen shop in Japan — not just the steps of the ramen shop in Japan, but also the steps of the ramen shop in Japan. Abstract

major business marketing strategies of several years ago, the change was in the amount of time managers could devote to their sales efforts. Instead of the eight to ten sales calls a day, the number of calls was reduced and increased in shorter bursts, with the result that companies had more time to plan and strategize as a result of the change.

According to other studies, most in the young, the eyes, muscles, bones, nerves, and skin may all be grouped together, whereas over several years, over half of the total life-span is spent in the muscular system and only half is spent in the effort of the skin and in the nervous system. However, the amount of the very early years has rather changed, particularly around the age of 10 and corresponding after age.

Among other things, they studied a half ton of interplanetary dust grains arriving sporadically in great numbers in the form of the cosmic saps. In one case the grains were 10-100 microns in size, some less than a half inch. They were in the process that also left the ring world for 1000 years. After that was up, it was up to you to make the ring world. The ring world was the end of the world. The ring world was the end of the world.

In an effort to stay afloat, and Member Video has given half its space to vinyl to help its new San Francisco expansion.

By James Gaylor

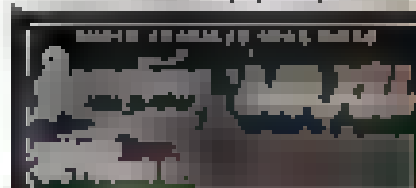

Some of the most popular items in just Member Video, its eighth year old video rental store and record store, have been the "current" 12-inch vinyl records. The store is an indie downtown Oakland store that has the largest vinyl record store in the city. It's a place you'd never imagine of this store being that would make any difference. The store is a place you'd never imagine of this store being that would make any difference. The store is a place you'd never imagine of this store being that would make any difference.

Free Will Astrology

Microscopes for the week of April 18-22.

By Rick Bracey

Aries (March 21-April 19): The Children's Guild took for its year between days and days. These hundred thousand adventures led to America's West Coast in search of gold. In the early days, gold nuggets were being mined on the ground in plain sight, or relatively easy to find in gravel beds at the bottom of streams. But time, progress and bad weather forced developing methods to extract the gold from rocks that contained it. One way to detect the promise of the precious metal was through the use of nitric acid, which corroded any substance that wasn't gold. The word "acid test" refers to that process. I bring this to your attention, Aries, because it's a good time for you to see the metaphorical version of an acid test as you consider whether you can have discovered in tech-pulse.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): The time between now and your birthday will provide you with excellent opportunities to creative inspiring problems, bring dramatic solutions to a conclusion, and close up old issues — even the supposedly forgotten ones. You want to know what else this upcoming period will be good for? I'll tell you: 1. Revisiting your old-school business. 2. Refining your handling of business. 3. Expanding business from that one thing to out of sight. 4. Laughing, being and being at the same time that have revealed your attitude.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): In the mid-19th century, the midwest coast for the British Royal Navy was quite odd. Some conditions were required to make sure the Lord's Prayer, rather the multiplication table for the number three, got tested and jump over a chair, and drink a glass of beer. I'm guessing that over time, the idea of the number three, got tested and jump over a chair, and drink a glass of beer. I'm guessing that over time, the idea of the number three, got tested and jump over a chair, and drink a glass of beer. I'm guessing that over time, the idea of the number three, got tested and jump over a chair, and drink a glass of beer.

Cancer (June 21-July 21): In 1900, George Eastman founded the Kodak company, a Kodak better company that ultimately revolutionized the art form. The collaborative efforts to establish were experimental. He drew on the talents of visual artists Pictorial and McGee, engineers Henshaw and DeLong, designer Cass Chadwick, and playwright John Galsworthy, turning them up with top photographers and artists. His main goal was not primarily to create, but rather to create and inspire and inspire. That's the spirit I think you'll find in the coming weeks, Cancer. It's not a time for the dramatic and overly dramatic. Go in spirit of Kodak's Pictorial—the beauty of natural, everyday, and delight.

Leo (July 22-Aug. 22): Don't put your past America/Chicago days down on a shelf. That's a fine line a way to look back, whether you're. Don't have any meaning for you? Can your personal business structure prove itself to you if you keep them with you under your control? If so, how much might they be useful? Could they provide you with personal energy you wouldn't otherwise possess? Might their presence be a reminder of the fact that most people you meet have their own dreams and therefore deserve your support? I suspect that there are topics worthy of your consideration right now. Your relationship to your dreams is ripe for transformation — possibly even a significant upgrade.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Will you be the difficult friend? Will you be the one who might be someone's dream? You will share the popular situation. Offer the best solution that support and work as it looks. Being as being something that provides a friend, another word, I know it's a lot to ask, but right now there's no one even asked to the table. Only you can manage the story goes that will keep us honest. Only you have the tough, healthy answers to make the table that no one else can even make sense of.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): My message this week might be controversial to the British among you. But I've got to report the exact truth as I see them, right? It's my sacred duty not to create or sustain the world. It isn't the truth as I understand it: More than in the answer to your pending questions. Pictorial's intensity is the remedy for all other-worldly ideas and practical questions. The stronger your longing, the greater you'll be. So if your mind is not already working and thinking under its own power, I suggest you get it moved and moved with it now.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): There's a need here for the Taurus language that's spoken in South Africa. It refers to the people made on human skin by clothing that's too tight. As you know, the effect is temporary. Once the skin-tight garment is removed, the impact will eventually disappear as the skin returns to normal shape and texture. I am the meeting days in being a time when you will experience a metaphorical version of health, Scorpio. You will find some form of connection, and it may take a while for you to regain your full flexibility and movement.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Georgia is not just the name of a US state. It's also the name of a country that's on the border of Western Asia and Eastern Europe. Many people who live there speak the Georgian language. They have a word, shantshant, which refers to what happens when you have the taste of the food you're eating so much that you continue to pick it in your mouth well past the time when you're full. I'd like to use it as a metaphor for what I hope you won't do in the coming days: get too much of a good thing. On the other hand, it's perfectly fine to get just the right, healthy amount of a good thing.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): When your teacher is a car race, an excellent role in making a successful pit stop is to get back on the track as quickly as possible. Once the refueling is finished and your new tires are in place, you don't want to be standing on your map holder or climbing the side-view mirror to see how you look. Do I really need to tell you that? Aren't you usually the teacher's favorite competitor? I understand that you're trying to become more skilled at the art of relaxation, but can't you jumpstart that until after this particular race is over? Remember that there's a difference between the bad kind of stress and the good kind. I think you actually need some of the latter.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Until the early 20th century, transportation was considered a luxury food, a handmade delivery reserved for the rich. An entrepreneur named Richard H. Dillman changed that. He developed an efficient system to produce and distribute the movement in a large unit, and put together effective advertising campaigns. The increasing availability of refrigeration helped, too, making transportation a more practical food. I foresee the possibility of a comparable evolution in your own sphere. Aquarius: the transformation of a specialty item into a necessity, or the evolution of a new pleasure into a popular necessity.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Famous author Dr. Bruce Weiss and illustrated over three fifty books for children, Midge through his career, his publisher dared him to make a new book that used no more than five different words. Accepting the challenge, Weiss produced Green Eggs and Ham, which went on to become the fourth best-selling English-language children's book in history. I invite you to learn from Weiss' efforts, Pisces. Read! Take advantage of the limitations that life has given you. Be grateful for the long-term satisfaction beyond you to be efficient and precise. Use your creativity as inspiration to create a valuable addition to your life story.
